

Job Opening: Postdoctoral Researcher | University of Kansas Cofrin Logan Center for Addiction Research and Treatments

The Cofrin Logan Center for Addiction Research and Treatment at the University of Kansas seeks a full-time postdoctoral research fellow. The successful candidate will work closely with Principal Investigator Dr. Tera Fazzino in the Health Behavior and Technology Lab on a project investigating the abuse liability of hyper-palatable foods.

Responsibilities include but are not limited to:

- Adhere to research protocols and complete daily research-related tasks to run the lab and active studies.
- Serve as an unblinded researcher that will organize, manage, and provide food stimuli for laboratory study on a daily basis.
- Conduct data quality control monitoring and data analysis as needed.
- Help with supervision of laboratory graduate students and research staff.
- Manuscript preparation for publication.
- Participate in the preparation/writing of grants.

The successful candidate will be provided with training in laboratory paradigms, behavioral assessment, and regulatory science as applied to food. They will also gain experience in general research administration and the preparation of grants and manuscripts. Additional independent research opportunities, such as conference and manuscript submissions, will be available based on interest and experience. This position is well-suited for individuals interested in pursuing research-focused careers in academia, academic medical centers, and/or research institutes.
